Haley & Aldrich leverages edison365 to accelerate innovation and client experiences

Marlow, UK – today edison365, the award-winning business transformation platform, announced that Haley & Aldrich, an environmental and engineering consultancy headquartered in Burlington, Massachusetts, has selected its ideas platform to revolutionize the way it innovates and identifies new efficiencies.

Haley & Aldrich's scientists, engineers, and constructors use novel approaches to address their clients' engineering and environmental issues. They continually challenge the status quo and look beyond the obvious solutions in order to deliver enduring results for their clients.

"Innovation is at the core of our corporate thinking; edison365ideas gives us the platform to engage all of our employees and capture their ideas to drive new operational efficiencies and innovations," said Ben Chandler, Chief Innovation Officer, Haley & Aldrich. "We take pride in solving our clients' challenges and, with edison365ideas, we can fast-track ideas and provide the best possible value and overall solutions to address their challenges," said Chandler.

"Employee driven innovation delivers so much more than just new ideas; it accelerates collaboration and creates an environment for driving change and value realisation," said Ivan Lloyd, Chief Innovation Officer, edison365. "With their heritage in the adoption of Innovation, we're proud to add Haley & Aldrich to our family of clients," said Lloyd.
